

Window & Door Manufacturing

Classic windows fill a different need in the building industry. Much more than a means to fill holes in walls, they are the showpiece of homeowners and architects—reflections of style and value.

You've built a business and a reputation on craftsmanship, reliability and performance. Leitz can make it easier to turn your visions into reality, your work into profit.

Whether you manufacture custom architectural windows and doors, on a small or large scale, for clients with interests in style, functionality or energy conservation, Leitz has the worldwide expertise and local presence to support you in design, testing and WER simulations. Let us show you how Leitz can give you the edge.

Expect A Relationship

Leitz award winning RipTec System is used for planing, profiling and coping to improve finish and window performance while reducing scrap and tooling costs.

Performance gains experienced in the European window industry from the patented RipTec technique are widespread and have led to improvements in other industries such as solid wood flooring, kitchen cabinets and stair building.

Expect Innovation

Innovative tooling systems from Leitz are designed to exceed your expectations.

Precision machining and mirror-finished micro-grain carbide knives produce a sand-free finish and outstanding performance.

Optimized tool design and unique clamping systems allow for quick, easy and accurate knife changes without special tools or setting devices.

(At right) Leitz innovation: collaboration with software designers creates continuous lines between fixed and operable tilt-turn windows for greater aesthetic appeal.

Expect Commitment

It's taken time and effort for you to convey the value of your products as more than a way to fill holes in walls. Leitz, too, has much more to offer than just cutting tools—consultancy, process improvement, tooling optimization and more.

Leitz maintains domestic manufacturing centers and a network of service centers to complement our unequalled product offering produced in Germany and Austria. A network dedicated to ensuring our customers' success.

Expect A Relationship.

Expect Innovation.

Expect Commitment.

Expect a Higher Standard.
