Aromatic & Mineral

Elios was born from the passion of two young Sicilian friends, they joined together to develop their families' farms and to bring them to their full potential after finishing their university studies. Elios prides itself on making minimum intervention, low sulfite wines with native Sicilian, organic grapes grown between Alcamo, Camporeale and Monreale; areas all located in the north-west part of Sicily. The wine making focuses on respect for the varietal, and aims to deliver an easy drinking, approachable style.

This white wine is made from Grillo grapes grown in calcereous soils located in the area of Camporeale. On the nose, it smells of fresh grape berries, with hints of green tea leaves and baslcamic notes, and some Mediterranean herbs aromas such as sage, thyme and mint. On the palate, it has a pleasant freshness and a special minerality that leads to a remarkable drinkability. Perfect to pair with fresh fish dishes and vegetables.

About the Winery

Elios

“Elios” was born from the passion of these two young Sicilian friends. With a true love for their land, they joined together to develop their families’ farms and to bring them to their full potential after finishing their university studies. The farm and vineyards are located near Palermo in north west Sicily. Along with olive groves and an apiary, they grow the native Sicilian grapes Grillo, Catarratto, Zibibbo and Nero d'Avola on their organic vineyards.

Elios prides itself on making minimum intervention, low sulfite wines with native Sicilian, organic grapes grown between Alcamo, Camporeale and Monreale; areas all located in the north-west part of Sicily. The wine making focuses on respect for the varietal, and aims to deliver an easy drinking, approachable style.

Press Reviews

Slow Food Editore

Top Vino Slow

It has a clear varietal outfit in which lemon peel, peach blossoms and pear stand out. The mouth is full and dynamic. A truly territorial Grillo.
