'Swell' Bordeaux-Style Red Wine Blend № 2020

About Swell : Swell is a beautiful bordeaux-style red wine blend that features a well-balanced composition of Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Petit Verdot, Cabernet Franc, and Malbec grapes sourced from various vineyards on California's Central Coast. Each grape variety brings unique qualities to the wine, resulting in a complex and flavorful blend. Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot add structure and fruitiness, while Petit Verdot and Cabernet Franc contribute tannins, spice, and complexity. Malbec adds a touch of floral and earthy notes, rounding out the blend.

California's Central Coast is well-known for producing exceptional bordeaux-style red wines, thanks to its ideal growing conditions. The warm vineyards of the Central Coast provide ample sunshine, promoting ripeness and intense flavor development in the grapes. Additionally, the unique climate and soils of the region, combined with the expertise of winemakers, contribute to the production of standout red wines. The terroir of the Central Coast, with its sandy and clay soils, moderate temperatures, and coastal breezes, helps to create wines with distinct character and complexity, making Swell a prime example of a well-made bordeaux-style red wine blend.

Tasting Notes : Swell has a deep, ruby-red color that hints at the wine's bold and intense flavors. The wine opens with a rich bouquet of blackberry, black cherry, and plum, with notes of vanilla and oak in the background. On the palate, Swell is full-bodied and complex, with layers of flavors that include ripe black fruit, black tea, and a touch of earthy tobacco. The tannins are firm and well-structured, providing a satisfying backbone to the wine's richness. A long finish lingers with hints of spice and chocolate.
