The illustration features a young girl with dark skin and braided hair, wearing a green and white striped shirt and red and white striped pants. She is holding a large green book and looking at it with a neutral expression. To her left is a stack of four wrapped gifts in red and green paper with white bows. To her right are several overlapping reading comprehension worksheets. The worksheets are titled: "Christmas Tree", "Christmas T...", "The Best Gift", "Ornaments", "The Present", "Caroling", and "Ed the Elf". Each worksheet has a "Name:" field and a short story followed by questions. The "Ed the Elf" worksheet includes three numbered questions: "1 Where did he meet Ed the Elf?", "2 What is one thing Ed does?", and "3 What was the answer to Ed's joke?".

My students all struggle with their reading skills. I loved that these were short passages and simple questions. My students loved that they could then do them independently after we did them together a few times!

My family loves decorating our Christmas tree. First, we eat a nice big dinner. Then, we pull out all the decorations from the attic.
