Thanksgiving Dinner

Name _____

There was a knock on the door. "That is your grandma and grandpa," Mom said to Nick. She opened the door. Grandma was holding corn. Grandpa was holding bread. "Happy Thanksgiving!" they said. Nick gave them a hug. "I get to make the pie this year," he said. "What kind are you going to make?" Grandpa asked. "It is a surprise," Nick said. He went to the kitchen to make his pie. "Are you ready to put it in the oven?" Dad asked. "Yes," Nick said. His dad took out a big turkey. Nick put in the pie to cook. They ate the turkey, corn, and bread for dinner. "Now it is time for apple pie!" Nick said. "That is my favorite!" Grandpa said.

Nick heard a knock on the door. "Your grandma and grandpa are here," his mom said. He ran to the door to open it. Grandma was holding corn. Grandpa was holding bread. "Happy Thanksgiving!" they said. He gave them both a hug. "Guess what?" he asked. "I get to make the pie this year." "Wow!" Grandma said. "What kind are you going to make?" Grandpa asked. "It is a surprise," Nick said. "I am going to go make it now." He went into the kitchen to make his pie. When he was done, Dad walked in. "Are you ready to bake it?" he asked. "Yes, I am," Nick said. Dad took the big turkey out of the oven. "Your pie can bake while we eat dinner," he said. Nick put the pie in the oven. It was time to eat Thanksgiving dinner. Everything tasted so good! When they were done eating, Grandma said, "I can't wait to taste your pie." Nick grinned. "I hope you like it," he said. He went to the kitchen. He carefully got his pie from the oven. He took it to his family. "It is time for apple pie!" he said. "That is my favorite!" Grandpa said.

Nick heard a knock on the door. "That is your grandma and grandpa," Mom called. She was in the kitchen making mashed potatoes. "Can you let them in?" she asked. Nick ran to the door. He opened it. Grandma was holding corn. Grandpa was holding bread. "Happy Thanksgiving!" they said.

“Come inside,” Nick said. He gave them big hugs. “Can you guess what I get to do this year?” he asked. “No, what do you get to do?” Grandma said. “I get to make the pie!” Nick told them. He loved pie. He couldn’t wait to make one himself. “Wow! That is a big deal,” Grandpa said. “What kind are you making?” Nick smiled. “It is a surprise,” he said. “Well, I can’t wait to find out what it will be,” Grandma said. “I can’t wait to eat it!” Grandpa said. They all laughed.

"I am going to make my pie right now," Nick told them. He went to the kitchen. He got a bowl, a spoon, and a pie tin. Then he got all of the ingredients. Nick made his pie carefully. Dad walked into the kitchen. "Are you ready to put it in the oven?" he asked. "Yes, I am," Nick replied. Dad took out the big turkey. Nick put in his pie. "It is time for dinner," Dad said. "When dinner is over, it will be time for pie!" Nick said. They ate at the table. Nick ate turkey, mashed potatoes, bread, and corn. "This all tastes so good," he said. He hoped that his pie would taste as good as the Thanksgiving dinner.

When they were all done, Nick went into the kitchen. His pie was done. He carefully took it out of the oven. He carried it to the dinner table. "That looks like a good pie," Grandpa said. "I hope it tastes as good as it looks," Grandma said. Nick sliced the pie. He gave a piece to his grandpa. "It's apple pie!" Grandpa said. "It is my favorite." 😊 😊 😊

Nick heard a knock on the door. "I bet that's your grandparents," Mom called while she made mashed potatoes in the kitchen. "Can you let them in?" she asked. Nick ran to the door and opened it. Grandma was holding corn. Grandpa was holding warm bread. "Happy Thanksgiving!" they said.

"Come inside," Nick said as he gave them big hugs. "Can you guess what I get to do this year?" he asked them excitedly. "What do you get to do?" Grandma asked. "I get to make the pie!" Nick told them proudly. He loved pie, so he couldn't wait to make one himself. "Wow! That is a big deal," Grandpa said. He loved pie, too. "What kind are you making?" he asked. Nick smiled. "It is a surprise," he said. "Well, I can't wait to find out what it will be," Grandma said. "I can't wait to eat it!" Grandpa said. They all laughed.

"I'm going to make my pie right now," Nick told them. He walked into the kitchen and got a bowl, a spoon, and a pie tin. Then he looked at the recipe. He got all of the ingredients he would need. Nick made his pie carefully. Dad walked into the kitchen. "Are you ready to put it in the oven?" he asked. Nick looked at his recipe one more time. He nodded. Dad took out the big turkey. Nick put in his pie. "It is time for dinner," Dad said. They ate at the table. Nick ate turkey, mashed potatoes, bread, and corn. "Everything tastes great," he said. He hoped that his pie would taste as good as the Thanksgiving dinner. When they were all done, Nick went into the kitchen. His pie was done baking, so he carefully took it out of the oven. He carried it to the dinner table. "That looks like a good pie," Grandpa said. "I hope it tastes as good as it looks," Grandma said. Nick sliced the pie. He gave a piece to his grandpa.
