My Big Brother

My brother's birthday is right around the corner! His birthday is on March fifteenth. This year, he is very particular about what he wants for his birthday. He wants a birthday party, but not just the standard birthday party. Carl wants a backyard birthday party with animals.

What animals does he want at his birthday party, you ask? He wants some very strange animals! Carl wants a buzzard, a leopard, and a lizard at his birthday party. He also wants a specialist to be there to teach him and his friends about these animals.

At first, our parents did not want to give him this kind of birthday party. They thought that it might be awkward, but Carl convinced them that it would work. "It's not like we live in an apartment! We have a beautiful back yard for the guests and the animals," Carlos remarked.

Our parents have worked really hard to plan Carl's birthday party. They have an animal specialist bringing lizards, leopards, and a buzzard. I am sure they will feel very rewarded when Carl and his friends are enjoying his peculiar birthday party.

The Auto Show

Paul loved the auto show. Every month, he caught the sight of beautiful automobiles as they were hauled across the asphalt. The sound of the engines caused his heart to pound. His aunt used to take him to the auto shows when he was a kid. Now Paul dreamed of driving the cars himself. The smell of the exhaust and the booming of the audio systems were comforting to him. It caused a sense of excitement. Even the gauges on the interior made him smile.

Every August, the biggest auto show came to Paul's town. He would watch as the drivers taunted each other and fought for a position. Paul taught his little sister, Laura, to love it, too. His sister was an author, and they loved to write about the hauls of beautiful cars they saw at the shows. They sometimes teased that one of the cars was haunted and had to be kept in a secret vault so it didn't take off on a jaunt all by itself. What a silly idea!

At the end of the August auto show, there was a big luau to celebrate. There was always a good haul of delicious food and sauces. Paul taught Laura that eating too much could make her nauseous. They always paused before going back for seconds. Of course, they washed their hands at the water faucet before leaving. It was Paul's favorite time of year.
