MISSION OAK

Applied by our skilled craftspeople, these classic hand-rubbed Stickley oak finishes enhance the distinctive lines of the Highlands range, resulting in classic pieces of enduring quality and incredible versatility.

MODERN OAK

This stunning range of new finishes transforms the look and feel of Mission design, bringing its timeless aesthetic and versatility to the most modern of sensibilities and décor.

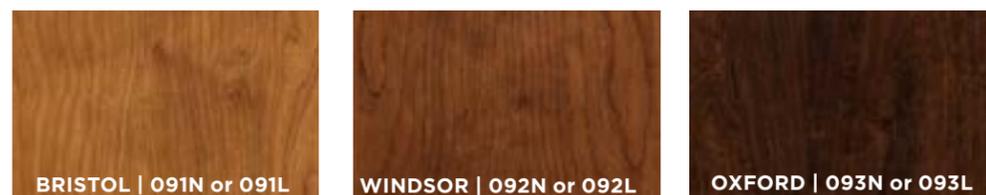

MISSION CHERRY

These finishes showcase the splendor of the wood and the timeless elegance of Mission design while harmonizing with cherry's natural aging process, resulting in pieces that will acquire even greater depth and character over the years.

DISTRESSED CHERRY

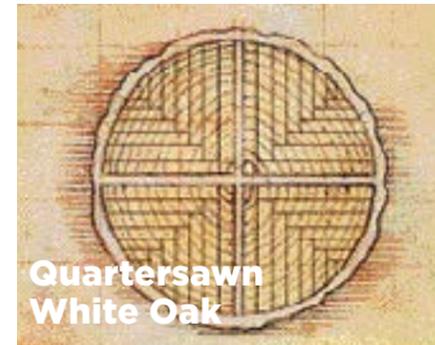

These were intended to recreate the look, feel, and style of multi-generational heirloom pieces.

Bristol, Windsor and Oxford finishes are available with no distressing (N) or light distressing (L).

Note:
The finishes photos are for general reference only, please visit your local dealer to see the full range of finishes. Visit your local dealer to see examples of all available finishes.

THE STICKLEY DIFFERENCE

Quartersawn White Oak

A method of sawing parallel to the oak's medullary rays, this type of cut yields boards with ray flake and gives oak amazing strength, making it less likely to crack, check or warp.

Side-hung and Center-guided Drawers

No plastic parts to break, no metal to rust and scratch: just honest to goodness hand craftsmanship. The center guide keeps drawers from skewing sideways while side suspension keeps drawers level when heavily loaded.

Quadrilinear Posts

Quadrilinear posts are crafted of four quartersawn solid white oak boards that are mitered and glued around a center post. This technique results in strong solid wood construction and the beauty.

Tenons

A signature element of Stickley construction is tenons— boards whose ends have been cut for insertion into a mortise. A blind tenon is concealed within the mortise, while a through tenon (shown above) projects beyond the depth of the mortise.

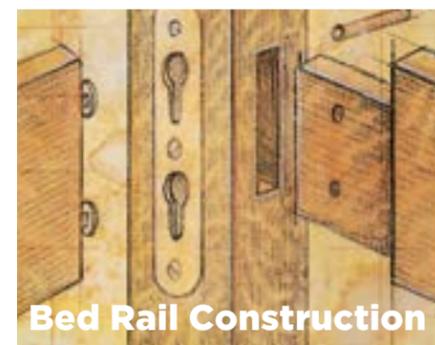

Keyed Tenons

Distinctively Mission, a keyed tenon projects beyond the mortise in the side of the piece and is slotted with a wedge shaped block. These three parts (the side, the tenon and the key) come together in perfect harmony so that the piece does not crack.

Tongue and Groove Joints

This woodworking technique ensures accurate board alignment and gives individually matched boards the appearance of one solid piece of wood. This joint does not crack or split.

Bed Rail Construction

For a good night's sleep, the side rails of all Stickley beds are mortised and tenoned into the posts, while the ends screw into an iron casting— all to ensure that the bed will not wobble or rock.

Blind Dovetailed Cross Rails

Dovetails signify good furniture. But what about dovetails in places you cannot see? Stickley dovetails the cross rails to strengthen cases from side to side with this no fail self-locking joint.

Placing Glass with Quarter Rounds

Instead of using a single sheet of glass on bookcases, Stickley uses individual panes secured with mitered wood quarter rounds that fit perfectly, making the inside of each door as handsome as the outside.
